THE TIME OF HER LIFE

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY

Copyright, 1906, by K. A. Whitehead

One morning, when Billy and I were lingering over our rolls and coffee, Betty came in with a tragic air and an open letter in her hand.

"Listen to this!" she exclaimed "Eleanor Cuyler is coming to New York to visit her aunt, and she says she simply must see us because she's always wanted to visit the 'shores of Bohemia!'"

"The shores of what?" said Billy. "I'm sure there's nothing Bohemian about us."

"That's just it," wailed Betty, "but Miss Cuyler doesn't see it that way. She's daft about people who 'do things,' and she says she never met any, so she begs that she may come to dinner some night, quite informally, and be one of us. She thinks that because Kate writes and you're an artist and we all live in a little flat—I mean apartment—we are—well, we are queer and unconventional."

"Who is this Eleanor Cuyler?" said Billy, with a frown.

"She's a Philadelphia girl Kate and I met when we were in the mountains last summer. She was awfully nice to us in ever so many ways, and now it's our turn to do something for her. It's no use suggesting the matinee or a luncheon. Eleanor's rich as Croesus and tired of all that, and there's nothing else we can afford. Oh, I don't see what we're going to do!" And Betty puckered her brows in despair.

"Do," cried Billy. "Why, it's as plain as day! Satisfy her craving for the unconventional! If we're not Bohemians, we can at least put up a good imitation of the real thing. We can ask the Englishman, Harry Rockminster—he'll add a continental flavor. And there's Perry Dashwood; he can sing stein songs better than any one I ever knew. We'll get Cynthia to come and recite, and Worthington to bring his violin. They can pretend they're professionals. Cynthia will be an actress just starting on her career, and Worthington a struggling musician—'struggling' is the right touch, isn't it? And—let's see—this is Monday. Write and invite Miss Cuyler for Wednesday evening. Bohemians aren't supposed to give much notice when they ask people to their parties." And Billy looked over at me and laughed.

While Betty was jubilantly writing her note I went to explain things to Aunt Pattie. Aunt Pattie has mothered us ever since we were children, and nothing we do ever surprises her, so she fell in with our plan at once. "But I couldn't be a Bohemian if I tried," she declared. "I wouldn't know how to act, and I'd make you all miserable and myself too. You can easily excuse my absence."

"But you'll miss all the fun," I objected.

Aunt Pattie's eyes twinkled. "Oh, I mean to be there!" she cried. "Since we have no maid I'm going to serve the dinner myself."

In vain we all protested, coaxed, commanded. Aunt Pattie was firm in insisting that as Miss Cuyler had never seen her it could make no possible difference. Yet somehow it did to me, for I could imagine with what horror my Englishman might look on such proceedings. Even after I had written to him and explained the circumstances I was tormented by misgivings, for, although he didn't know it, his good opinion mattered more to me than anything else in the world!

All Wednesday Betty and I worked like majors. We had always rather prided ourselves on the artistic arrangement of our little parlor. Now, in order to make it look Bohemian, we had banked it with all the bizarre and startling things we could lay our hands on. Billy's delicate water color sketches were jostled by flamboyant posters, theatrical photographs adorned the mantel, and sundry pipes and ash trays littered the table. It certainly looked queer; but, as Betty and I confessed to ourselves, we didn't. Betty was demure in a gray gown, and I wore my black net. I was just fastening one of Harry Rockminster's roses in my hair when the bell rang.

"There she is!" cried Betty hysterically. "Now, don't act as if anything unusual were happening!"

Eleanor Cuyler was enthusiastic in her greeting, and she was still telling of her joy in seeing us when we crossed the threshold of the parlor. At sight of the room she smothered a little gasp, which showed that our work had not been in vain. Then Billy came forward, and the loose blouse and soft tie which he wore for the occasion made him look as if he had stepped straight out of the Latin quarter. But Miss Cuyler wasn't any more surprised at his appearance than he was at hers. Somehow neither Betty nor I had told him what a beauty Miss Cuyler was—a childish little beauty with a fluff of golden hair and deep blue eyes that opened very wide when anything astonished her.

Perry Dashwood and Harry Rockminster came early, but there wasn't a sign of Cynthia and Worthington.

"They're half an hour late already," said Betty to me in an aside. "What on earth can be keeping them? I'm afraid the dinner will be spoiled."

Something of our uneasiness reached Billy, and he turned abruptly to Betty. "I really think we'd better not wait for the others," he said. "They may be quite late. You never can tell what may happen on the shores of Bohemia."

But we were hardly seated before we heard the turn of Worthington's latchkey and the swish of Cynthia's skirt down the hall. She made a dramatic pause at the dining room door and looked perfectly dazzling in a crimson Spanish costume, glittering with spangles.

"I hope you won't mind my coming in costume," she said. "We were kept late at rehearsal, and there wasn't time to change. I met Worthington on the stairs," she continued nonchalantly. "He'll be in in a moment. He's a musician, Miss Cuyler, and you know what uncertain hours musicians are forced to keep, especially when they are young and struggling."

Cynthia moved toward her chair with sinuous grace. She said afterward that the Spanish costume had entered into her blood, and she wasn't responsible for anything she did. Neither was Worthington, for he wore a peculiar, shabby black coat and carried his violin under his arm. But his crowning glory was his hair, or perhaps I should say his wig, which was very long and straight.

"'The Music Master,' by Jove!" ejaculated Harry Rockminster.

Yet not once did a triumphant gleam illumine the eyes of Signor Worthington. To this day I've always wondered how he managed to keep that dreamy, abstracted expression. Of course I knew I could count on Cynthia and Worthington, but I never knew I could count on them to such an extent as that. Eleanor Cuyler was delighted. She looked at them and listened to them in open eyed wonder as if they were beings from another world. And all my fears of what Harry Rockminster would think were set at rest when he whispered, "I say, isn't this a stunning lark!"

And now if Aunt Pattie didn't act too much like a lady our Bohemian dinner would be a complete success, but one false note would ruin everything. I toyed with the grape fruit as long as possible. Then I rang the bell. As I did so I kept my eyes fixed on Billy. He sat opposite the kitchen door and would be the first to see Aunt Pattie. The kitchen door creaked, swung open, and the expression on Billy's face signaled me that something had happened.

"Aunty," he burst out and then checked himself.

From behind me came a soft voice with the pleasant slurred accent of the south. "I reckon yo's 'sprised to see me, Mars' Billy! Yo' didn't know I was to cook de dinnar, did yo'?"

I turned and beheld Aunt Pattie! And yet not Aunt Pattie! For the face that beamed from beneath a bandanna turban was as black as the ace of spades!

To Miss Cuyler this apparition was nothing more than a loquacious dusky servant, but the rest of us were in ecstasies of mirth. We have vowed ever since that we owed the whole success of the evening to Aunt Pattie, for not only was the dinner deliciously cooked and splendidly served, but it went with a whirl. Harry Rockminster was never more brilliant in his life and told stories of marvelous escapades in which he had taken part. Cynthia recited "Lasca" with true dramatic fervor. Between courses Worthington played snatches on his violin, and we all sang songs—songs for which Perry made up funny impromptu choruses. The men smoked, and through the blue haze shone the radiant face of Miss Cuyler.

When dinner was over she leaned back in her chair with a little sigh. "It's just as I fancied Bohemia would be," she declared. "Oh, what fun you all must have gathering round the table this way every evening. Of course it's just a common occurrence to you, but I shall never forget it. Never! And I can't thank you enough for this glimpse of it."

Billy said she thanked him fervently again when he saw her to her carriage. "I've had the time of my life," she reiterated, "the time of my life!"

"Well, she wasn't the only one," said Worthington. He had taken off his wig and was mopping his brow while the rest of us sat about the dining room table nibbling at the remains of dessert and teasing Aunt Pattie to have something more substantial than lobster salad and a cup of coffee.

"Miss Cuyler did seem to appreciate it," said Cynthia.

"Appreciate!" cried Billy. "I think it's we who ought to appreciate her coming! Why, just to look at her is a feast! She has exactly the kind of eyes I want for my 'Queen Titania.'"

"Why don't you ask her to pose for it, then?" suggested Cynthia slyly.

"I have asked," answered Billy quite simply, "and we are going to begin tomorrow."

"Whiff!" sniffed Betty. "I smell orange blossoms!" And under cover of the laughter Harry turned to me.

"Miss Cuyler's had the time of her life, Billy's had the time of his, and there's just one thing wanting to give me the time of mine." His lips were smiling, but there was no mistaking the look in his eyes.

"I'd hate to spoil your evening by saying 'No,'" I whispered back. And then, although I was so happy, I had an absurd desire to cry, and if Billy hadn't suddenly interrupted with a toast to the shores of Bohemia goodness knows what might have happened!

Trout's Narrow Escape.

A correspondent of the London Field relates that he shot a flying heron that had been fishing in the river Colne at Uxbridge, and as the bird fell there dropped out of its mouth a trout nearly one-half pound in weight. The fish was alive, though scored on the back. A keeper procured a live bait can, filled it with water and put the trout into it. After a minute or so the fish gained strength. In a few hours it seemed quite resuscitated and apparently none the worse for its narrow escape from death. It was accordingly returned to the river to recover itself fully.

DESPERATE HEROISM.

An Incident of the Indian Fighting Days in Illinois.

The desperate intrepidity and warlike heroism of the early settlers of Illinois are illustrated by an incident narrated in "Historic Illinois." The early days were a time of hardship, danger and death. Every forest covert, every tuft of prairie grass, might hide some skulking red enemy. Among the early frontiersmen was a Captain Whiteside, whose name became a terror among the Kickapoos.

A party of fourteen white men led by Whiteside made an attack upon an encampment of Indians of greatly superior force. Only one Indian escaped. During the heat of the skirmish Captain Whiteside was severely wounded, he thought mortally, having received a shot in the side.

As he fell he called to his sons to keep on fighting and not to yield an inch of ground or permit the savages to touch his body. Del Whiteside, who had also been shot in the arm, so that he could no longer use his rifle, hastily examined his father's wound, discovering that the bullet had glanced along the ribs and lodged against the spine.

With that daring and disregard for pain so often characteristic of border men he immediately whipped out his knife, gashed the skin, extracted the ball and held it up, crying:

"You're not dead yet, father!"

The old man leaped to his feet, renewed the fight and bore his full part to the end. Many such instances of heroism distinguished the men who in those days of peril were called upon to defend the frontiers of Illinois.

EASILY SCARED.

An Adventure With a Rhinoceros in East Africa.

Of a curious encounter with a rhinoceros an African traveler writes in the Globe Trotter, published in Nairobi, British East Africa: "He was peacefully grazing on a choice patch of green stuff and apparently meant to do the well bred thing and allow us to pass by; so, with my heart in my mouth, nothing in my pockets and an empty magazine rifle in my hand, I attempted a slide for a more secure position. But I was immediately foiled of this object by a suspicious movement on the part of the enemy. A swish of the tail, a suggestive uplifting of the snout and a sniff of the atmosphere, and the delicate and fairylike creature bore down ponderously upon my two native bearers and myself.

"My knees promptly refused to work. I could not move a muscle, and so with all the British pluck and courage of which we have read so much I calmly resigned myself. By this time the hideous beauty had advanced to within ten yards of its prey, when, to my surprise the two boys accompanying me hastily dismantled themselves of all baggage, and, with all muscles stretched, ready for a sprint, they stood their ground and, without moving an inch, began to whistle for all they were worth.

"Quickly noting the satisfactory result of the maneuver, I blew my whistle hastily and with good will. The shrill notes struck strangely on the untutored ear of the rhino, for he promptly turned tail and fled."

A Short Cut.

"There goes a man," observed a steamship agent as he directed attention to a surly looking individual who had just engaged passage for Europe, "whose efforts are devoted to constructing short cuts in business methods and in eliminating all time consuming men and their propositions from his busy existence. He is a man of very few words. Some years ago this gentleman crossed the ocean and had a very unpleasant trip. One morning a sympathetic passenger offered him a lemon, expressing a sincere wish that it would give relief. The pale traveler seized the lemon, hurled it viciously into the ocean and growled: '"This is a quicker way than the other.'"—New York Times.

Are You Tired, Nervous and Sleepless?

Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourishing blood; they are starved nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood, and thereby the nerves are properly nourished and all the organs of the body are run as smoothly as machinery which runs in oil. In this way you feel clean, strong and strenuous—you are toned up and invigorated, and you are good for a whole lot of physical or mental work. Best of all, the strength and increase in vitality and healthcare lasting.

The trouble with most tonics and medicines which have a large, booming sale for a short time, is that they are largely composed of alcohol holding the drugs in solution. This alcohol shrinks up the red blood corpuscles, and in the long run greatly injures the system. One may feel exhilarated and better for the time being, yet in the end weakened and with vitality decreased. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains no alcohol. Every bottle of it bears upon its wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in a full list of all its several ingredients. For the druggist to offer you something he claims is "just as good" is to insult your intelligence.

Every ingredient entering into the world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery" has the unanimous approval and endorsement of the leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice. No other medicine sold through druggists for like purposes has any such endorsement.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only produces all the good effects to be obtained from the use of Golden Seal root, in all stomach, liver and bowel troubles, as in dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, ulceration of stomach and bowels and kindred ailments, but the Golden Seal root used in its compounding is greatly enhanced in its curative action by other ingredients such as Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure triple-refined glycerine.

"The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

High School Building and the Bond Election.

The School Trustees of the Sonoma Valley Union High School in submitting to the voters of this valley a proposition to bond the district for $7000 for a new High School building, have done so after mature consideration. The nine Trustees are careful and conservative citizens who represent every part of the Sonoma Valley. When the problem of providing new quarters for the teachers and students of our High School to supplant these partially destroyed and made unsafe by the earthquake of last April, they discussed with great care and precision the several methods of providing the necessary revenue. A direct tax was out of the question, as it would work a hardship on the taxpayer, although it would provide a speedy way of raising a building fund. This latter plan was cast aside as being way behind the times, so they adopted the modern plan of bonding, which compels a future generation to share with us the burdens and responsibilities of securing permanent public improvements, which will be handed down to that generation as an inheritance for its benefit.

The bond proposition which will provide a new $7,000 High School building for Sonoma Valley has much to commend itself to the voters, as the following will show:

First—It provides a way of securing a High School building, which we must have. There is no question about that.

Second—The plan of issuing twenty bonds of $350 each, one of which is to be paid off each year, provides an easy and inexpensive way of raising the necessary revenue. Surely no one will dispute this fact.

Third—There is no other plan of providing revenue for the building except by levying a direct tax on our people, which would be onorous and have a disastrous effect on property values. Every taxpayer and property-owner must realize this.

These counts being true it is plain to be seen that our High School Trustees in calling the forthcoming bond election have consulted the best interests of everybody in this matter, for a new High School building we must have or else this valley must be relegated back to the "has beens" in matters educational.

High School Now on Accredited List.

Prof. Montgomery, principal of the Sonoma Valley Union High School, has been advised by President Wheeler that his school has been placed on the accredited list of the State University. Graduates of our high school can now enter the University of California without being subjected to an examination. This news will be received with satisfaction by the patrons and friends of our leading educational institution. Prof. Montgomery and his able corps of assistants are to be congratulated in raising the standard of the school which has enabled it to be accorded a place among the few accredited schools in the State.

ELSEWHERE in these columns will be found a communication signed "Trustee," in which the writer urges the taxpayers of Sonoma Valley Union High School District to vote no on the bond proposition to provide a building for the one rendered unsafe by the earthquake. "Trustee's" reasons for urging the defeat of the bonds is that they will cost the taxpayers "twenty-five cents or more on the $100 of valuation for the next fifteen or twenty years." "Trustee" is way of on his "figgers." The fact of the matter is the tax levy to secure the payment of the principal and interest on the High School bonds will not exceed 3 cents on the $100 of valuation for the first year the bonds run and every year following the levy will become less. The assessed valuation of property in this valley, in round numbers, is $2,600,000, and to raise $350 principal the first year and $350 interest, or $700 in all, which will liquidate the first bond, will only entail a tax levy, to be exact, of 2 7-10 cents on the $100 of valuation. If "Trustee" wishes to dispute these figures we will accord him all the space he desires in these columns. The INDEX-TRIBUNE is always open to a free open expression on questions of public import.

THE proposition to build a $7,000 High School building by paying off a five-per-cent $350 bond each year for twenty years is an easy way of raising the money It is like taking candy from the baby.

SANTA ROSA ITEMS

An earthquake and fireproof building of four stories, with elevator and other modern appliances, will be erected on Fourth street, Santa Rosa, by Mrs. Overton and Mrs. Jennie Overton Livernash.

Charles Johnson, employed at the Santa Rosa Milling and Construction Company's plant on E street, met with an accident there Tuesday afternoon which will deprive him of the use of his left hand for some time to come. He was running a joiner, when his hand slipped on the wood he was handling, and before he could check its onward motion it had gone into the machine. The sharp knife cut off the ends of the first two fingers on the hand. Johnson's wounds are quite painful.

Just as he had passed within the portals of the county jail on Third street on Wednesday night, where he had been brought by an officer from Occidental, a young Italian, named Domenico, attempted to commit suicide by gashing his leg with the sharp blade of a big pocket knife. He succeeded in severing a big artery, but thanks to the immediate calling of a physician by Deputy Sheriff and Jailer Serafino Piezzi, the bleeding was staunched, and upon inquiry at the jail at midnight Deputy Piezzi stated that he was resting quietly.

W. O. Barnes has sworn to a complaint against Frank Darling, in which he accuses the latter of having obtained the sum of twenty dollars through means of false pretenses. According to the story of Barnes, Darling represented to him that his wife and child were suffering and destitute, and that he needed the money to send to them. He is alleged to have also represented that he was going to paint a house for John Bones of Occidental, and that he would repay Barnes from the money received from this work. Darling resides at Green Valley, and is quite well known there. The complaining witness declares that as a matter of fact Darling has no wife or child, and that he misrepresented the matter to Barnes to obtain the money.

Following the Flag.

When our soldiers went to Cuba and the Philippines, health was the most important consideration. Willis T. Morgan, retired Commissary Sergeant U. S. A., of Rural Route 1, Concord N. H., says: "I was two years in Cuba and two years in the Philippines, and being subject to colds, I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which kept me in perfect health. And now, in New Hampshire, we find it the best medicine in the world for coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and all lung diseases.

J. J. Mathews of the Rose City Soda Works, who makes weekly trips to this valley every Tuesday, was in town the other day. With his partner, J. L. Roberts, he lost everything in the quake and fire in Santa Rosa, but the plant has been supplanted by a new one. We commend this firm to the people of Sonoma Valley towns. Mr. Mathews had a narrow escape when Santa Rosa was overthrown by the earthquake. He was in the Palm lodging house when it went down and was buried beneath the debris. It took him a quarter of an hour to dig his way out, after which he assisted in rescuing two ladies who also went down with the building. Inside of ten minutes after the rescue the debris was a mass of flames.

BOND ELECTION FOR HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Trustees Adopt the Only Business-Like Method for a New Edifice.

The Trustees of the Sonoma Valley Union High School have issued a call for a special bond election to be held in the nine schoel districts comprising the Union High School District for July 7th.

The voters are invited to authorize the Trustees to issue bonds in the sum of $7000 for a new high school building to replace the one damaged by the recent earthquake and condemned as unsafe.

The voters of the school districts which will have a voice in the matter are confined to the following districts: Sonoma, San Luis, Glen Ellen, Watmaugh, Flowery, Huichica, Enterprise, Dunbar and Harvey.

The Trustees of these nine districts are as follows: Theo Wagner, Enterprise; A. Froment, Dunbar; Robt. P. Hill, Glen Ellen; Robt. A. Poppe, Sonoma; H. Rubke, San Luis; P. H. Thompson, Huichica; J. M. Allison, Flowery; R. J. Dowdall, Harvey; E. J. Johansen, Watmaugh.

The bond proposition calls for the issuance of twenty 5-per-cent bonds of $350 each to run for twenty years, one of the bonds to be taken up each year until the debt is extinguished.

The polls will be open at 8 a. m. and will close at sundown, and there will be only one voting place—the Union High School building in Sonoma.

Those Ancient Streets Again.

When Gen. M. G. Vallejo laid out the town of Sonoma in the early days before the discovery of gold he had great visions of Sonoma becoming the metropolis of the Pacific. These visions were dispelled by the discovery of gold which changed completely the aspect of things in the State. The original city of Sonoma took in a number of square miles of land lying to the east and south of town and the original map of Sonoma, as laid out and platted by the General, shows miles and miles of streets and avenues. In course of time the embryo city ceased to grow and the greater part of it was cut up into small farming tracts and sold for agricultural purposes. As time went on apace the streets running through these tracts became a source of much annoyance to the owners, and suits to quiet title to the same have been brought time and again in our courts. The latest of these suits was commenced in the Superior Court of this county last Tuesday by Ada B. Ashford, who appeared before the court, through her attorney, Robert A. Poppe, and commenced an action to quiet title to 11.35 acres of land situated in the former Pueblo of the City of Sonoma. The defendants named in the suit are Alexander Brooks, Wm. A. Atterbury, Chas. Baum, Elliot Libby S. B. Stilton, Horace Bigalow and Henry Baker. These parties evidently long since dead according to the records never deeded away their rights in the streets, the title to which Mrs. Ashford now seeks to make clear.

The Booklets.

Although the pictures and cuts for the Sonoma Valley booklets are being duplicted, the books will not be printed as soon as expected owing to the poor facilities for high class work. Mrs. Murphy is advised both by the printers themselves and others not to rush the publication. The following letter from Mr. R. X. Ryan bears on this subject:

"SAN FRANCISCO, June 14, '06.

"Mrs. Celeste Granice Murphy—Dear Madam: I have your kind note of recent date. I am sorry to learn that you have lost all the matter for your book. We lost every scrap of paper we had. I have no doubt you will be abie to duplicate the matter, but would suggest that you do not rush it too fast as printers in ninety days from now will be able to do much better work than they can at the present time.

"If there is anything we can do we shall be pleased to have you command us. Yours truly,

"R. X. RYAN."

Despite the unlooked for delay the booklets will be issued as soon as possible, and will be a great credit to the valley.

The weather the past week has been the warmest of the season and has been very beneficial to corn, garden truck and fruit.

Schellville Items.

To the taxpayers of the Sonoma High School District: If you do not want to pay twenty-five cents or more on the one hundred dollars taxes for the next fifteen or twenty years, vote No on those bonds and order your Trustee by a petition to have the Sonoma High School lapse. TRUSTEE.

Picnic Party.

On Tuesday last Mr. Richard Stafford Bosworth gave a picnic party to Masters Arnold Aldrich, Wm. Rosa and Swinton Aldrich in Graham Canyon. Twenty-five or thirty little folks, chaperoned by Mrs. Carl Dresel, Miss Bessie Knight and Mrs. Aldrich, left town at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and arrived at the picnic grounds just before the luncheon hour. The young folks partook of a fine lunch, after which they engaged in playing games. Later on ice cream and cake were served. The little people enjoyed the outing immensely and are high in their praise of Mr. Bosworth's hospitality.

Swallowed Lye.

Lloyd Sund, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Sund, drank a quantity of concentrated lye Sunday evening, and is in a precarious condition. The child wanted a drink, and in his haste picked up a cup that had formerly contained paint, and into which the mother had placed a weak solution of lye to cut the paint.—Press Democrat.

GLEN ELLEN TO CELEBRATE THE 4TH

Under Auspices of the Woman's Improvement Club.

The Fourth of July will be celebrated in Glen Ellen. The matter is in the hands of the Woman's Improvemeht Club of that place and will take the form of a basket picnic in the beautiful park. The literary exercises will be held in Social Hall and Judge A. G. Burnett will be the orator of the day. The ladies will serve ice cream, lemonade and coffee on the picnic grounds for which a reasonable price will be charged.

As there will be no celebration in Sonoma on that day everybody should turn out down this way and add to the enthusiasm of the occasion. The people of Glen Ellen in the past have never been backward in helping Sonoma out in matters of this kind, and now that our people have a chance to reciprocate we are quite sure they will do so.

THE PLANET MERCURY.

Like Venus and For Like Cause, It Is Now a Dead World.

Mercury is a body devoid, practically if not absolutely, of air, of water and of vegetation. Consequently it is incapable of supporting any of those higher organisms which we know as living beings. Its surface is a vast desert. It is rough rather than smooth. Whether this roughness be due to mountains proper or to craters we are too far away from it to be able yet to say. The latter is the more probable. Over the greater part of its surface change either diurnal or seasonal is unknown. Three-eighths of its surface is steeped in perpetual glare, three-eighths shrouded in perpetual gloom, while the remaining quarter slowly turns between the two. The planet itself, as a world, is dead.

Interesting as Mercury thus proves to be, the interest as regards the planet itself is of a rather corpselike character. Less deterrent perhaps is the interest it possesses as a part of the life history of the solar system, for tidal friction, the closing act in the cosmic drama, has brought it where it is. The machine has run down. Whether it ever supported life upon its surface or not, the power to do so has now forever passed away. Like Venus and for like cause, it is now a dead world. And it was the first thus to reach the end of its evolutionary career, earlier to do so than Venus, inasmuch as tidal action was very much greater upon it than on Venus and consequently produced its effect more quickly. Mercury has long been dead. How long, measured by centuries, we cannot say, but practically for a very long time. Venus must have become so comparatively recently. Both, however, now have finished their course and have in a most literal sense entered into their rest.

SEEING SICILY.

Not to Know This Island Is Not to Know Greece.

There are some lands which have always laid a spell upon the mind, upon the imagination, upon the heart. Greece, above all other countries, has entranced the mind. The imagination has ever loved the east—Egypt, the Indies, forgotten Asia, the almost as mysterious Asia of today. For most of us the home land is the country of the heart, for many, it may be, it is Palestine, where was lighted the fire at which the hearts of incalculable millions are still warmed. Others are content to say with Emerson in the fine essay on "Heroism," "That country is the fairest which is inhabited by the noblest minds." But, above all other lands, there is one which has at once impressed the mind, the imagination and the heart of western peoples. When a famous poet declared that on his heart would be found engraved the word Italy the words voiced the emotion of a multitude in every country of Europe and in the great northern continent oversea.

To see Sicily, the old "Garden of the Sun," as the poets have loved to call it, is not to see Italy, though there may be a measure of truth in Goethe's remark that not to know Sicily is not to know Italy. In a sense one might more truly say of Sicily that not to know it is not to know Greece. In another sense, however, we have in this most beautiful of islands the intensification of Italy. Whatever is most Italian is in evidence here, though it is Italian of the south and not of the north. What a gulf divides them is known only to those familiar with the whole peninsula.—William Sharp in Century.

"Bulls" Not Irish.

Those who are not Irishmen sometimes trespass on Irish property. A French cure, preaching about sudden death, said, "Thus it is with us—we go to bed well and get up stone dead!"

An old French lawyer writing of an estate he had just bought added, "There is a chapel upon it in which my wife and I wish to be buried, if God spares our lives."

A merchant who died suddenly left in his bureau a letter to one of his correspondents which he had not sealed. His clerk, seeing it necessary to send the letter, wrote at the bottom, "Since writing the above I have died."

A Sentiment and an Autograph.

A certain young lady, so the story runs, wrote to F. Marion Crawford, the novelist, requesting that he send her a bit of sentiment and his autograph. The reply was:

Dear Miss A.—When you request a favor that is of interest only to yourself, please inclose a two cent stamp. There's your sentiment, and here's your autograph. F. MARION CRAWFORD.

—Collier's Weekly.

A Simple Precaution.

Landlady (of country inn on the eve of a popular holiday to her daughter, who is kneading the dough for a cake)—Resel, you'd better put a couple of eggs and a bit of butter into the cake. It looks as if we were going to have a storm, and if the townsfolk don't stir out tomorrow we shall have to eat it ourselves.—From the German.

Language.

Language is a solemn thing. It grows out of life—out of its agonies and ecstasies, its wants and its weariness. Every language is a temple in which the soul of those who speak it is enshrined.—O. W. Holmes.

Feminine Finesse.

Duffer—My wife got a fiver out of me today with one happy remark. Puffer—Let's have it. Duffer—She told our boy Willie that she was his nearest relative, but that I was his closest.—Indianapolis Star.

Every day is a new life, every sunrise but a new birth.—Jordon.

The Very Best Remedy for Bowel Trouble.

Mr M. Borroughs, an old and well-known resident of Bluffton, Ind., says: "I regard Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as the very best remedy for bowel trouble. I make this statement after having used the remedy in my family for several years. I am never without it." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

The loss of life in San Francisco on April 18th, 19th and 20th will never be accurately known.

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendation to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

San Francisco is wrestling with two finance committees who want to handle the monetary donations. That headed by James D. Phelan seems to be the real thing.

How to Break Up a Cold.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. To do his, however, prompt action is necessary. The first symptoms of a cold is a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

SUPERFICIAL SENTIMENT.

Secret of Power Lies In Intensity of Emotion.

Superficial sentiment is without vital influence. The secret of power lies in the intensity of emotion, but especially so in poetry, art and literature. By no hocus pocus can artists and writers adequately depict what they do not feel. There should be a thermometer of temperament as well as for temperature. Feeling and emotion have their degrees. We are serene when our feelings are in the temperate zone, indignant when we pass eighty-three, furious when we reach blood heat, mad at boiling point. When feeling falls below 50 we become indifferent, and when it reaches freezing point we are heartless. An emotion that does not attain the seventy-sixth degree is hardly worth recording. At summer heat the rarest flowers begin to bloom and nature becomes poetic. While the temperate is the proper sphere for pure reason and scientific observation, it is rarely, if ever, proper for the highest achievement in any art. In the world of art imagination and feeling are not content with a serenity that touches the borders of indifference. The creative instinct is never effective unless at a certain pitch of enthusiasm. It is the sharp, clear, brilliant current of thought that electrifies the brain. But an idea is worthless unless we can find a form to hold it. In the best work idea, form and feeling appear to the beholder as one. An electric bolt seems a cold thing, yet a stroke of lightning will consume more at one flash than an ordinary fire would consume in an hour.—Francis Grierson in Criterion.

Sore Muscles

Prominent athletes throughout the country find that the best treatment for sore muscles after severe exercise or hard work of any kind, is a hot bath at bed time, which open the pores. This should immediately be followed with an application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm vigorously rubbed into the skin. This liniment removes all stiffness and soreness and has become a favorite rub down, as it acts promptly and keeps the muscles in excellent condition. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Notwithstanding the fire the banks of San Francisco are as strong financially as strong as ever. All have resumed business, many of them at their old quarters, which were but partially destroyed.

ANCIENT ROME

Is now merely a memory of the past. Ballard's Snow Liniment is the family liniment of the twentieth century. A positive cure for Rehumatism, Burns, Cuts, Sprains, Neuralgia, etc. Mr. C. H. Runyon, Stanberry, Mo. writes: "I have used Snow Liniment for Rheumatism and all pain. I can't say enough in its praise." Sold by Simmons' Drug Store.

Thousands of temporary structures are being erected amid the ruins of San Francisco at the present time. Those will eventually give way to permanent buildings.

THERE ARE FEW

People who know how to take care of themselves—the majority do not. The liver is a most important organ in the body. Herbine will keep it in condition. V. C. Simpkins, Alba, Texas, writes: "I have used Herbine for Chills and Fever and find it the best medicine I ever used. I would not be without it. It is as good for children as it is for grown up people, and I recommend it. It is fine for La Grippe. Sold by Simmons' Drug Store.

Really a Human Being.

The story is told in China that years ago a missionary made his appearance upon a platform there and that the native orator who introduced him closed with these words: "When I have finished a gentleman from the west is going to address you. He is not a foreign demon. His appearance and his clothing may seem strange to you, but look carefully at him. He has two arms and two legs, two ears and two eyes, a nose (though a long one) and a mouth; and I assure you his teeth are made of bone, just like yours. He is really a human being, and I hope you will regard him as such."

Uncomfortable.

"She didn't speak to her husband for six months."

"My, it must have been very uncomfortable!"

"Yes—for her."

He who can suppress a moment's anger may by so doing prevent a day of sorrow for himself and another.—Success Magazine.

DON'T! ! ! !

Don't let your children suffer with that cough when you can cure it with Ballard's Horehound Syrup, a sure cure for Coughs, Bronchitis, Influenza, Croup and Pulmonary Diseases. Buy a bottle and try it. Sold by Simmons' Drug Store.

Stock in a Big Mail Order House

Six per Cent Earnings Guaranteed

And Enables You to Buy Anything for Home, Yourself or Family, at Same Price Your Local Dealer Pays

Price of Stock Will soon Be Advanced

Act Quickly

Look out for that "rainy day!"

It comes sooner or later for so many—we can't tell to-day who may want on the morrow.

Prepare now while you are able for any misfortune that may overtake you. Don't run any risks.

Here is something that will help you provide for the rainy day—an investment that carries with it unusual benefits and proves its value from the minute you buy the stock.

Smith's Cash Store is well and favorably known all over the West. Its reputation is of the best and in volume of business it is making tremendous strides forward every year. Some five years ago the stock was selling for $5.00 a share. Today the price is $10.00 a share. These figures demonstrate what a thriving institution is this biggest Mail Order House on the Pacific Coast.

Each share of stock is guaranteed to earn 6 per cent a year. But the greatest benefit is derived by the stockholder from the discounts given to the holders of five or more shares of stock. You can buy anything to eat, use or wear at the same price the goods would cost your local dealers. We call them "Owner's Prices."

Suppose you buy goods that altogether cost $50 at our wholesale rate. If you are a stockholder you get a discount amounting to $2.50, and your bill is only $47.50. The saving you will make in one year in addition to the earnings will in all probability more than cover the investment.

Year after year you will be effecting big savings. But should hard times knock at your door—and you must not be too sure that something of that sort will not happen—think what it will mean to you to be able to buy everything at cost prices. It might be the very thing that would help you to survive the period of distress.

We are increasing the amount of our capital stock. We are telling you about the stock because we think you ought to invest for your own sake. You couldn't buy stock in any other concern that would pay you so well.

It will not be long before the price of the stock is advanced. You know that means there are not many days remaining in which you can take advantage of this great offer.

For your convenience we are printing a coupon which you ought to fill out—it does not obligate you in any way. Send it at once.
